

TV programming has become far too violent for both adults and children. I don't enjoy watching TV anymore because of all the violence - it's just not 'entertainment' for everyone. Therefore I rarely even let my child watch TV. I've noticed the violence seems to get more extreme as time goes on, as if there is a continual need to 'outdo' what's been done before. The effect is something that makes a lot of people want to turn their TVs off. It sends the wrong message.
